Preface

Care for a sneak peek at what goes on inside an 8th grade classroom? Well, you're in for a treat!

This year, our students are excited to share their latest project: creating their very own zine! Zines are small, DIY (do-it-yourself) publications covering a wide range of topics and themes. They're a unique form of self-expression where individuals can share their passions with unbridled creativity. And speaking of passion, what better theme for such an effort as the bicentennial of our beloved city?

So, sit back, relax, and try to catch a glimpse of the aging princess of a city through the eyes of its youngest citizens!

CAPÃO DA ONÇA

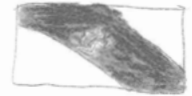

According to the legend of the treasure of Capão da Onça, on the farm of Coronel João Ribas da Silva, a young polish farmer saw a jesuit priest calling him. As he approached, the priest asked the farmer to follow him, for he would show him the place where a great treasure was hidden. After a long walk, the priest pointed to a certain place and told the young man to dig there, and that the treasure found should be used for good ways. In this way, the priest disappeared. The polish man returned to his house to get his equipment, but when he returned to the indicated place and dug, he found nothing. Thinking he had made a mistake, he dug in other places, but without finding a gold stone. Searching for the right place, the young man went mad, and to this day explorers search for the treasure of the jesuit priest in the place known today as Capão da Onça.

blue crow

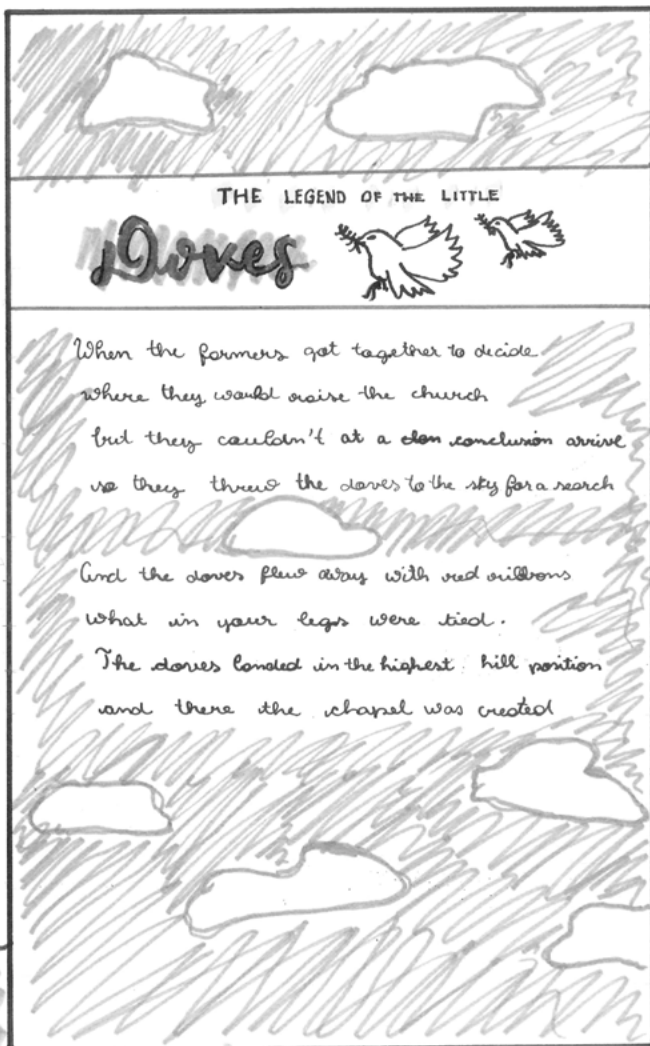

According to legend, a long time ago the blue crow was a "normal" brown crow, and one day he asked God to give him a mission to make him useful and he gave him a pine nut and the crow ate the thinnest part and buried it the other part in the ground however, days later the crow forgot where he had buried the pine nut. The crow searched a lot, but did not find it. However, it realized that she had been born in the area where she had buried an araucaria tree. So, all happy, she took care of that tree. And when it grew, it began to bear fruit and the crow ate part of the pine nuts and buried the other part, giving rise to new araucarias. In a short time, Paraná was covered with thousands of pines, giving rise to the Araucaria forest. When God saw the work of the crow, he gave her a prize: he painted her feathers the color of the sky, so that they could recognize her. This is the story of the blue crow!

The tales of Ponta Grossa

The elderly say that when the farmers of Campos Gerais got together to decide where the Church of Sant'Ana - the headquarters of the population - was going to be built, they didn't come up with a decision. So, two white pigeons were released, and the builders constructed the shrine in the place where they landed.

The second tale is about the main variation of the legend of Pedra Grande. Three drivers decided to explore the region and search for a hidden treasure. However, even days of excavation later, they couldn't find anything. But during daybreak, one of the men, hidden from his comrades, entered the cave and found gold. Right after dawn, when the other two discovered the betrayal, they began to fight, but the traitor ended up assassinating his friends and getting away with the gold. Rumors say that ghosts of the murdered often appear at that location.

The last tale is about the creation of the Vila Velha park. A god called Tupã kept a treasure in the region. The united indigenous warriors, named Capiabas, to create a village. The guardians were prohibited from having relationships with women, and with that, the rivales sent the indigenous woman Craca to seduce the leader of the Capiabas. The plan worked, so the couple fell in love. After discovering the betrayal, the god Tupã petrified them and caused an earthquake, which originated the rock formations.

The legend of the Doves!

The old ones say that, when the Farmers of the Campos Gerais where gathered to decide the local of the settlement, to build a church evoking Lady Sant'Ana. But they didn't reach an agreement, because each one wanted the place to be close to their farms. Finally they reached an agreement and decided to release two white doves with red ribbons tied to their legs, and the center of the new village. Once the doves were released, they flew far away and landed on a cross, next to a huge fig tree, on the highest hill, next to the path of the drovers. There, a modest wooden chapel was build under the blessings of Lady Sant'Ana. And around it, the new population grew.

The white doves.

Once upon a time a group of farmers were planning to build a chapel in devotion to Lady Sant'Ana. Every farmer wanted to build near his own farm, they would not reach consensus.

So they decided to release a couple of white doves and where do they land will be built the chapel. When they let go, the doves landed on a cross next to a fig tree at the top of the hill along the path of the Tropeiros.

Problem solved, the location chosen, everyone helped in the construction of a simple wooden chapel and, around it, the parish grew and developed.

A tale about Ponta Grossa

This region is called "Capão da Onça" because a jaguar was haunted and killed, this was very symbolic to the people in region.

A few years later Colonel João Ribas da Silva owned a farm where a young Polish man lived. The doves

The Campos Gerais farmers gathered to decide where the city headquarter would be. After a long time discussion about it, they ended up with no conclusion, because they were disagreeing at every single idea they had.

Due to it, they let two doves go, and the place that they would land in, would be the place that the city headquarter would be located.

The doves flew away, both with red ribbons in their feet, for the farmers, to recognise them, and landed on a enormous hill, next to a big fig tree.

After that, a little church was built, and the city grew around it. Now, this church is the well-knowned Santa Ana's Cathedral, our mother church.

SEPAM LITERARY COLLECTIONS PROJECT

The Sepam Literary Collections Project has been part of Sepam School Pedagogical Projects since 2017, aiming the stimulation of students to practice the writing, showing them that each one has his / her discursive ability and identity through written texts, and that we can not get caught up in the premises: "I do not know how to write" or "the teacher is the only reader of my text".

Being part of the discipline of Textual Production, this project permeates every year of Elementary II, with the procedural purpose of writing development.

We do not seek perfect materials, but texts with the peculiarities of our writers students, as well as the exposure of the world's knowledge and the experiences of each one of them.

The Project itself envisions giving wings to words woven in the classroom, invading other spaces and enchanting unknown readers.
